Call for Price

Over the past few years, highly collectable climate change painter-activist Joseph Ntensibe has produced an extraordinary and evolving body of large-scale works highlighting the deforestation crisis unfolding before him in his Ugandan home.

This unique canvas shimmers care of Ntensibe’s ability to portray the beauty of leaves in different stages of their life cycle, but it is equally laced with poignancy.

The forests of his youth would rarely reveal the sky and sadly, as more vital land is eradicated, so the densely forested landscape he once knew may be destined to be but a memory.
