Kyle Jardine is a self-taught artist, illustrator & now ceramicist ( BA performance & licentiate in musical theatre ). In his discernibly quirky and playful style, Jardine explores a world that encompasses joyful, innocent & queer themes, acknowledging lesser represented factions.

His use of colour throughout his work, along with characters, print & patterns flow from canvas to vessel with ease, highlighting his influence from the world of fashion, costume design & all things theatrical. Inspired to seek out the joyous moments in life, there is an ease in soaking up his creations. The artists motivation is clear, in that he doesn't take life too seriously and, why would you want to when you're immersed in his playful imaginative creations?
